

Kelly Cappio MPH
Director of Vaccines and Biodefense Policy
Biotechnology Industry Organization (BIO)

At BIO, Ms. Cappio's responsibilities include: analyzing domestic and international policies that affect immunization access, medical countermeasure funding and development, and public health preparedness; developing industry policy positions and advocacy messages; and providing subject matter expertise during meetings with Administration officials and Congressional members.

Ms. Cappio is a 2014 fellow in the UMPC Center for Health Security's Emerging Leaders in Biosecurity Initiative. Prior to joining BIO, she worked in federal government affairs at Sanofi. Before graduate school, she was as an operating room assistant and materials manager at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte, NC. Ms. Cappio received a Master of Public Health from George Washington University in 2011 and a BA in international affairs from the University of Colorado at Boulder in 2005, graduating as a member of Phi Beta Kappa.