

CDR Tracy Branch MPAS, PA-C
Public Health Advisor
Office of Minority Health
US Department of Health and Human Services

Tracy Branch is a Commander in the U.S. Public Health Service. In her current position, she is responsible for advancement of the Office of Minority Health's health policy and programs in the areas of cancer, diabetes, workforce development, oral health, adult immunizations, and American Indian and Alaska Native initiatives. Previously, she was a Regional Minority Health Consultant based in Kansas City, Missouri.