

Lori Uscher Pines PhD, MSc
Policy Researcher
RAND Corporation

Lori Uscher Pines research interests include adult immunization and public health preparedness. Her current projects include supporting the development of NVPO's National Adult Immunization Plan and ASPR's National Health Security Strategy. She has also supported CDC to assess uptake of influenza vaccine and the impact of influenza immunization requirements for healthcare workers. She has authored over 45 peer-reviewed publications.

Before coming to RAND, Ms. Uscher Pines completed a post-doctoral fellowship at Johns Hopkins University, National Center for Preparedness and Catastrophic Event Response.