

Susan Farrall MPH
Health Communications Specialist
National Center for Immunization and Respiratory Diseases
Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

Susan Farrall works on projects to educate and support healthcare providers to improve immunization rates. In her over twelve years at CDC, she also has been on the team that responds to public and provider inquiries coming through the NIPINFO email service. For the NAIIS, Ms. Farrall serves as co-chair of the Provider Workgroup and is involved in the planning and implementation of the annual Summit meeting in May.

Ms. Farrall's previous public health work has been in diverse areas of injury prevention, reproductive health, disabilities, foster care and tobacco control. She has worked internationally in Morocco, Turkey, Senegal, and Jordan, and she has worked domestically with health departments and nonprofits in many U. S. states.

Ms. Farrall has an MPH from Columbia University.