

Alexandra Shevach
Health Communications Specialist
Carter Consulting
Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

Alexandra Shevach has been a Health Communications Specialist with Carter Consulting since 2014. Prior to that time, she was an ORISE Fellow with the National Center for Immunization and Respiratory Diseases and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, a Programming and Communications Intern with the Tobacco Technical Assistance Consortium, and a Health Communications Intern with the Waterborne Disease Prevention Branch. She also has been a preschool teacher at the Emory Autism Center, Walden Early Childhood Center.

Currently Ms. Shevach is serving as the co-lead for the National Adult and Influenza Immunization Summit's Patient Education Workgroup.

Ms. Shevach earned her Master of Public Health in Behavioral Sciences and Health Education and her Bachelor of Arts in Sociology from Emory University.