

Ben Pierson
Program Manager for Health Information Exchange
OCHIN

Mr. Pierson has been with OCHIN since 2011. Initially responsible for project managing EHR implementations and the development of new interfaces between disparate healthcare systems, he now works to improve interoperability throughout the OCHIN collaborative of community health centers across the nation in order to improve their patients' lives.

He received Bachelors of Science in both Communication from Oregon State University and Public Health from Linfield College. When not trying to find better ways to facilitate patient care through data exchange, he spends his time hiking the area around his hometown of Portland, OR and watching every soccer game he can find.
