

Amy Parker Fiebelkorn, MSN, MPH
Senior Epidemiologist, Immunization Services Division
Program Deputy, Pandemic Influenza Vaccine Response
Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

In addition to her work with the Immunization Services Division, Ms. Fiebelkorn serves as the CDC technical lead of two contracts focused on adult immunizations. She also leads a multi-million cooperative agreement focused on implementing the Standards for Adult Immunization Practice. She is the lead of the Influenza Working Group for the National Adult and Influenza Immunization Summit and is a Commander in the U.S. Public Health Service.

Prior to joining the Immunization Services Division in 2015, Ms. Fiebelkorn was a subject matter expert in measles, mumps, rubella, and polio in CDC's Division of Viral Diseases for 10 years. She joined CDC as an Epidemic Intelligence Service Officer in 2005. She obtained her master degrees in nursing and public health from Emory University.