

Brendan Flannery, PhD
Epidemiologist
Influenza Division
National Center for Immunization and Respiratory Diseases
Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

Dr. Flannery leads the US influenza vaccine effectiveness network (US Flu VE Network) for CDC, which evaluates the level of protection provided by influenza vaccines against circulating influenza viruses in the US population each year.

Dr. Flannery received his Bachelor of Science in Biology from Stanford University and his Masters of Public Health and doctorate in Epidemiology from the University of California, Berkeley. He joined CDC in 2002 as an Epidemic Intelligence Service officer in the Respiratory Diseases Branch of the Division of Bacterial Diseases, where he began his work on immunizations. He has authored more than 50 peer-reviewed journal articles.
