

Susan Farrall, MPH
Public Health Advisor, National Vaccine Program,
Office of Infectious Disease and HIV/AIDS Policy
Office of Assistant Secretary of Health
Department of Health and Human Services.

Susan Farrall is a Public Health Advisor since November 2021 at the National Vaccine Program in the Office of Assistant Secretary of Health at the Department of Health and Human Services. In this position, she works to develop national plans and policies that support immunization and on projects to advance immunization equity. Her equity projects include a research project about COVID vaccination for underserved communities and co-chairing the NAIIS Equity Task Group. Previously, she worked for 18 years at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, with 13 years devoted to immunization programs, and 5 years devoted to public health emergency preparedness. While at CDC, she was deployed for several public health emergencies, including Ebola assignments in Guinea and DR Congo, and assignments during the COVID pandemic to improve vaccine access for older adults. Her prior work experience has been as program manager of the tobacco control program at the DC Department of Health; project officer with JHPIEGO and the Pathfinder Fund for family planning projects in Turkey, Morocco, Senegal, Tunisia, and Jordan; national field organizer for the National Safe Kids Campaign and Peace Corps volunteers in Marrakech, Morocco working with children with disabilities. She has an MPH from Columbia University.
