

Allison L. Hill, PharmD, RPh
Director, Practice Implementation & Professional Affairs
American Pharmacists Association

Allison L. Hill, PharmD, RPh is Director, Practice Implementation & Professional Affairs at American Pharmacists Association (APhA) where she leads initiatives that advance sustainable pharmacist's patient care services. Her portfolio includes vaccines as she represents APhA on numerous immunization coalitions and workgroups. Prior to Allison's current role, her practice experience includes over ten years in community pharmacy. She was involved in many projects including health fairs, public health speaking engagements, and mobile vaccine clinics. Mayor Muriel Bowser appointed Allison to the District of Columbia Board of Pharmacy and she's currently serving her second term. Originally from South Carolina, she graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in Chemistry from North Carolina State University and received her PharmD from Howard University College of Pharmacy.