

Heidi Rens, PharmD CPHQ
Ambulatory Director of Quality and Patient Safety
Sutter Health-Sacramento and Central Valley Divisions

Heidi Rens, PharmD, is the Ambulatory Director of Quality and Patient Safety for Sutter Health's Sacramento and Central Valley Divisions. Sutter Health, an integrated healthcare network, serves 3.5 million patients across Northern and Central California. In her role, Dr. Rens supports performance improvement within both foundation and affiliated medical groups, with an emphasis on system-wide quality initiatives. She currently leads strategic programs aimed at improving immunization rates at Sutter Health and manages the organization's involvement in the AMGA's Rise to Immunize Campaign by overseeing data reporting on vaccine measures for six medical groups and foundations.

Previously, Dr. Rens was a Clinical Coordination Pharmacist at Sutter Health's system office, where she also chaired the Vaccine Advisory Committee.

Before joining Sutter Health in 2014, Dr. Rens held several leadership roles at CHOC Children's Hospital, University of Colorado Health, and Kaiser Permanente (in both the Mid-Atlantic and Northern California regions). She earned her Doctor of Pharmacy degree from the University of California, San Francisco.
