

PETER VIGLIAROLO
Vice President, Health Sector
PADILLA

Peter has over 35 years of health care public relations experience, specializing in infectious diseases, cardiology, diabetes & lung disease advocacy/education as well as medical/data/scientific and public health communications.

He also has extensive experience in marketing and corporate communications, media relations, and public affairs strategy as well as crisis communications.

Peter has spearheaded several communications and advocacy campaigns on numerous vaccine-preventable diseases, working closely with leading national medical & health stakeholders, patient groups, and experts to help advance public health immunization goals.